Proclamation

WHEREAS, American women of every race, class, and ethnic background have made historic contributions to the growth and strength of our Nation in countless recorded and unrecorded ways; and

WHEREAS, American women have played and continue to play critical economic, cultural, and social role in every sphere of the life of the Nation by constituting a significant portion of the labor force working inside and outside of the home; and

WHEREAS, American women have played a unique role throughout the history of the Nation by providing the majority of the volunteer labor force of the Nation; and

WHEREAS, American women were particularly important in the establishment of early charitable, philanthropic, and cultural institutions in our Nation; and

WHEREAS, American women of every race, class, and ethnic background served as early leaders in the forefront of every major progressive social change movement; and

WHEREAS, American women have served our country courageously in the military; and

WHEREAS, American women have been leaders, not only in securing their own rights of suffrage and equal opportunity, but also in the abolitionist movement, the emancipation movement, the industrial labor movement, the civil rights movement, and other movements, especially the peace movement, which create a more fair and just society for all; and

WHEREAS, despite these substantial and enduring contributions, the role of American women in history has too often been overlooked, undervalued, or omitted from the literature, teaching, and study of American history, thereby diminishing public understanding of their indispensable impact on the Nation's past, present, and future; and

WHEREAS, it is both fitting and necessary to recognize and celebrate the achievements of American women, to ensure their stories are fully and accurately reflected in our historical narrative, and to inspire future generations to pursue equality, service, leadership, and civic engagement; and

WHEREAS, honoring the history and contributions of American women strengthens our democratic institutions, affirms our shared commitment to equality and justice, and enriches the civic, cultural, and economic life of our community and Nation.
